Tale of a Ticket Seller's Parrot.

Ben Lusbie, who for fifteen years was one of the grearest features of Barnum's circus in the capacity of "lightning ticket seller," had a wonderful parrot, which had been presented to him by one of the canvasmen of the show, who was at one time a sailor.

Lusbie used to have a way of quiet ing the scrambling mob of ticket purchasers around the ticket wagon by saying, "Don't be in a hurry, gentle-men!" "There's plenty of time!" "Don't crowd each other!" "One at a time, gentlemen " and such like ex pressions. The parrot, which was perched upon the safe in the wagon just back of Lusbie, got to learn these ilttle speeches after a season's tour and often broke out in a piercing squawk with one of them, much to Lusbie's amusement. The parrot, which was quite a little vagabond, broke loose from her fetters one day and flew over into a neighboring woods near the circus grounds. A searching party was made up, and they had not proceeded far before they heard a vast racket, apparantly made by squawking birds. Hastening to the scene they found poor Poll clinging as best as she could to the limb of a dead tree, surrounded by a screaming flock of crows. The parrot had only two or three tail feathers left, and the hostile crows were striking, pecking and plucking her right and left. The parrot was shrilly screaming: "One at a time, gentlemen!" "Don't crowd there!" Connected with Hack Stand "Take your time!" "There's plenty
